

"CASEY": Wanda and Redd Baron

ARRIVES CONNECTICUT FROM AUSTRALIA APRIL 2007

It's 1:00 A.M. and my wife and I just got home from JFK airport - 2 hours away. The airport was a bit of an ordeal, but our little guy appeared and he was fine.

I found someone who went back and retrieved a crate with an adorable set of eyes peering out. Your suggestion to bring a scissors was most valuable. Upon opening the door, there was a moment of careful reluctance and then he ventured out and I was so pleased at how comfortable and together he was. It's amazing that this 10 week old pup goes half way around the world and he was in better shape than I.

He's absolutely wonderful. I'll write you tomorrow with some details. Jeff.

Morning after an exhausting night, is so nice. We're getting to know and explore everything. The airport was not easy. AA terminal was under construction and no one knew the routines. After an hour from when the plane (already 1/2 hour late) came in,

We took over a little corner of the airport and gave him a bit of water and a cube of cheese and off we went. The 2 hour ride was wonderfully relaxed for us all. Casey just lay on my wife's lap chewing a wrightlet of rawhide.

He was amazing. When we got home, we let him roam around our front lawns and fed him the chicken, rice, carrot mix. He ate, but only a little. He also had a bit of yogurt. We then all went to bed with him in an open crate next to the bed. We had one 5 minute episode of yelping, and that was it.

This morning there's been a lot of play and adjusting, but we're so pleased. Casey is very playful, still getting to know his new home, but he seems very happy.

Well I won't go on, but thanks for your part in this great spiritual experience. Of course you can quote me or whatever. It's so sincere that I'll be doing people a favor if they are at all reassured by my experience.

Gratefully,

Dr. Jeff Weisberg Connecticut
